Total for Six States Is Only
$167,776,000, or About a
Third of Our Allotment

The billion mark in the campaign for the $86,000,000,000 Fighting Fourth Liberty Loan was passed by the nation today. The expiration of the first week of the present loan found the nation still 50 per cent. behind expectations.

New England's total for the sixth day of the campaign lacked a million dollars of equaling the daily quota necessary to put the New England allotment through before the expiration of the big drive. There was $2,000,000 reported to the Federal Reserve Bank today from the six New England States.

New England's total to date is $147,776,000, or approximately one-third of the total allotment. The remaining two-thirds must be raised in the twelve business days between now and October 18.

Of the daily total Massachusetts contributed $17,533,000, Rhode Island, $2,494,000, Connecticut, $1,653,000, Maine $27,000, New Hampshire and Vermont, each $65,000. The detailed totals by State at the end of the first six days are:

Maine	$27,000
New Hampshire	$65,000
Vermont	$65,000
Rhode Island	$2,494,000
Massachusetts	$17,533,000
Connecticut	$1,653,000

So far but 17,617 individual subscriptions have been reported throughout New England. This is declared to be a very poor showing for so populous a region.

Boston subscribed a gross total of $1,000,000.

Indicted for Fraud
The 35 waiters, chefs and stewards of dining cars on the New Haven road, who were rounded up a week ago on a charge of profiting by serving full portions of food and charging passengers for full portions, were indicted by the Federal Grand Jury. They were held in $500 bail, each, for trial.

POLICE NOW WEAR GERM MASKS ON "GRIP" DUTY

Patrolman Patrick F. Lyons of the City Hall Station wearing guaze mask provided for members of the department whose duty brings them in contact with victims of influenza.

If it has on a helmet, it's a policeman.

It has on a white uniform, it's a nurse or orderly.

In other words, the new guaze "germ masks" to be worn by Boston policemen for protection against influenza make them look very much like the attendants one sees in hospitals and on hospital ambulances.

Seventeen hundred of these masks were distributed today by the police department to patrolmen in all stations, to be used whenever duty calls them into contact with the disease.

The mask is a fold of antiseptic guaze, to be placed over the nose and mouth when exposed to infection. The mask is tied about the head. It is this enough to breathe through, but sufficed so as to keep out the germs. Each mask is wrapped in an antiseptic paper, and is not to be opened until immediately before use.

Before a policeman enters a house or building where the disease exists, he will put on his mask.

During the past week or two the police department has been hard hit by the epidemic, especially the LaGrange street station. Policemen have been asking for some such protection, and many of them have been wearing masks prepared by themselves.

General March Says No Men Stricken Will Be Selected for Duty Overseas

By International News Service. Washington, Oct. 5.—More than 145,000 troops have been embarked for overseas service. During the month of September alone more than 25,000 were placed on shipboard. This was the answer made today by General March, chief of staff, to reports that overseas troops movements have slowed up.

The general explained that this shipment was despite the presence of more than 100,000 cases of Spanish influenza in the various camps of the country.

There will be a readjustment in the manner of moving troops from the camps to embarkation ports as a result of the disease. It is a rule of the department that no man shall be selected for overseas duty who has been affected by the disease or who has been exposed to possible contagion.

General March did not indicate whether there would be any readjustment in overseas troop movements in the future as the result of the influenza epidemic.

HOSPITAL TENTS FOR GRIP WAR

Sate Lunches Outdoor Campaign to Curb the Epidemic

The Governor and Council decided today to erect tent hospitals and wooden shacks to cut down the death toll of influenza by fighting the disease with fresh air and sunshine.

The estimated cost is $50,000, and work will begin immediately on the erection of wooden shacks at Corey Hill, Brookline, and in Ipswich. The shacks will accommodate twenty patients each.

Not only has the death rate been high among patients but also among nurses and attendants in hospitals, Dr. Kelley declared.

He submitted figures showing that in one hospital 70 out of 250 nurses

DEATHS IN TURK TROOPS

REPORTED IN MUTINY

By International News Service. Zurich, Oct. 4.—Mutiny is reported to have broken out in the Turkish army. Ten thousand deserters marched upon Constantinople demanding "the surrender of Talaat, Bey and Enver Pasha from the ministry," said a dispatch received here today.

There were clashes between deserters and loyal troops, but the result of these pitched battles is unknown. An army of deserters has grown up in Asia Minor and this force has captured a number of towns.

STEAMSHIP VICTIM OF MINE

Sin Saba Goes Down Off Jersey Coast: Number of Lives Lost Unknown

By International News Service. Washington, Oct. 5.—The sinking of the Mallory line cargo steamship Sin Saba, 15 miles southeast of Barnegat, N.J., yesterday afternoon, was announced by the Navy Department today.

With the cause of the sinking not yet been determined it is believed that the vessel was sunk by a mine. The Navy Department is without figures that would determine the loss of life if any occurred.

A steamer bound for New York reported having picked up four survivors from the Sin Saba, together with one dead body that was floating on the wreckage.

When the news of the sinking was reported the Navy Department immediately sent patrol vessels to the scene to search for possible survivors and to determine the exact location of the wreck.

The Sin Saba was a vessel of 2,100 tons.

Nine-Mile Advance Made by Allies in Flanders

A nine-mile advance on a front of twenty-five miles, the capture of 10,500 prisoners, 150 cannon and 500 machine guns and trench mortars, is announced by the Belgian War Office today. The victory was won by the Belgians on the Flanders battle front, where the Belgians are attacking with the British.

New and important gains by the American, French and British armies are also announced today.

American troops, in new attacks, are again advancing on a wide front on both sides of the Argonne forest.

East of the forest (in the sector northwest of Verdun) the Americans have taken and passed Fleville and now stand on high ground dominating the Kriemhilde line over a front of nearly twenty miles.

The Kriemhilde line is the chief German bulwark defending the lines of communication supplying the left flank and most of the centre of the whole German army in France.

East of the Argonne the Americans have increased their total gain to about eight miles. West of the forest, in the Champagne district, the Americans have stormed St. Etienne and the woods to the north, advancing about six miles since Thursday morning.

ENORMOUS PROPERTY LOSS

People in Towns Near Morgan, N. J., Flee Showers of Fragments Following Blast

By International News Service. New York, Oct. 5.—Explosions, the last one shortly after noon being the worst, continued today at Morgan, N. J., where the shell loading plant of the T. A. Gillespie Company blew up last night.

It was estimated at the time this dispatch was written that the property damage amounted to $30,000,000. No accurate list of the casualties has yet been made. Estimates vary all the way from fifty to 200 with as many as 1,000 injured.

At noon today Federal authorities ordered all the residents of Totenville, Staten Island, out of that vicinity. Totenville is just across the bay from Perth Amboy, which is near Morgan. All morning flying embers and burning shells fell in Totenville and it was decided to evacuate the town.

A Thrilling Story of an American Girl and German Intrigue
in This Country

ONCE in the BFL, her brother and Fischer discussed Lutchester's indiscretion volubly.

"That's right," said Fey. Richard, Feynman's son, was a physicist who wouldn't have jumped at the chance of dining alone with Bush, but as an Englishman, on a night like this, he just couldn't resist. Feynman, the paper, "ay, he must have some nerve."

"Or else," Feynman remarked, "it's a subtle difference. I've never had studied the Anglo-Saxon temperament. I should be inclined to vote for the indifference. That is the American attitude. I don't care, my friend. Every man in that country prays for his country's success, not that he's got one, but he has not found the same spirit in the English people."

"The English people," Pamela interpreted, "have a genius for condescension, which amounts to stupidity."

"I accept," he bowed low

"That to be phlegmatic after a certain point is a sign of low vitality," said the Countess of Derbyshire, if England is to be saved from her present ills, she must be a phlegmatic. The Litchesters of the world who would do it, nor, it seems, her navy."

It was a very large cabinet, where Pamela noticed the most interesting performance a tall woman, who had been termed a universal disaster to Great Britain, was giving. The Countess, and, generally speaking, the audience, was stunned. Pechter behaved with the most perfect propriety and discretion. He made few references to the Countess's remarks, but not to indulge in any undue ex-

SOMERSET was the air of one who had been in an almost ecstatic mood. On her return from the theatre she was wearing a wonderful gown for a white negligee, and her head-dresses were of the latest fashion. She was stretched upon a sofa drawn before the wide-staircase, and her hair was pinned close to her head in the style known at the Ritz-Carlton. She was looking at the clock and filled almost to overflowing with the roses which she drew from the vase on the table. As she had pressed him to leave her hilaration. Once upon Van Tey's return to the back, however, to speak to some of the guests, he turned earnestly to Pamela.

"Will it please you soon," he begged, "to resume our conversation about the British navy?"

"I will," she replied, and she looked at it, things have changed, have they not?" An invincible British navy has been one of the fundamental principles of British policy in American politics. Now that it is destroyed, the outlook is different. I could go myself to the proper quarter in Washington, and tell you that."

"I have to go to my work," said Schwirn in haste to his pocket.

Her coach, old Gutcheiser, had been waiting for her all the evening while she idled. I am, I have no work, no engagements—I am free to go with you to talk. My clothes have done. I am a lady who has been brought up to be a lady. I have my cigarettes, my sherry, and the lights and the murmur of the city there below me. I will go with you to talk to you, my friend."

"I am thinking of me—that I am a animal who loves comfort and much, eh?"
